the book enlisted and included the opinions and comments of some of the more successful street warriors in the industry. They provide uncompromising advocacy for entrepreneurs—experience and savvy street-worthy counsel for those who daily deal with the challenges of operating and ultimately receiving their just reward in retirement from a business.

For decades these have been an increasing number of advisories who take their “pound of flesh” from the independent business owner.

Now there are aggressive advocates to protect and guide business owners who give a lifetime of talent and resources to earn a decent return on their investments.

If you do not read another business book this year, read E⁴ the most informative book of its kind in the marketplace.
